

🎯 HISTORY

The descendant of a line of ancestors going back to the Middle Ages, the French Union of Shooting Associations (Union des Sociétés de Tir de France) was created in 1886. After the merging of several closely linked associations within the USTF, the French Shooting Sports Federation (Fédération Française de Tir) was founded in 1967. This non-profit making association has been officially recognised as serving the public good since 1971.

🎯 THE FRENCH SHOOTING SPORTS FEDERATION

The French Shooting Sports Federation acts on behalf of the Ministry of Sports. It is an active member of CNOSEF (French National Olympic and Sports Committee - Comité National Olympique et Sportif Français) and of CPSF (French National Paralympic and Sports Committee - Comité National Paralympique et Sportif Français). Its president is currently Michel BACZYK and its National Senior Manager Gilles MULLER.

National Shooting Sports Centre (Centre National de Tir Sportif or CNTS)

The CNTS in Châteauroux-Déols is one of the largest shooting ranges in the world. It has shooting ranges from 10 to 600 meters, with 5 shotgun ranges and 220 shooting lanes for olympic disciplines. Since 2022, the CNTS has its own modular "finals" range at 10, 25 and 50 meters. It is full property of the FFTir.

An ambitious Centre with both a national and an international vocation :

As of today the French National Shooting Sports Centre (CNTS) is on the list of sites able to host the biggest national and international competitions: World Championships, World Cup, European Championships, French Championship etc.

The French National Shooting Sports Center (CNTS) is also at the heart of federal development schemes. It allows the National Technical Committee to organise training modules for the French teams, preparation periods for large sporting events and specific training courses: referees, coaches, doctors, physiotherapists, etc. It will also be accessible to foreign teams.

For the French Shooting Sports Federation, the French National Shooting Sports Centre CNTS represents a home for all shooters. Time slots are regularly reserved for leagues, clubs or even individual members. It is also used from time to time as a tool to enable companies to introduce their employees to the shooting sports.

In 2024, CNTS will host the Olympic and Paralympic Games.
